

Australian Human Rights Centre

Volunteer Questionnaire

Please complete and email to ahrc@unsw.edu.au

Thank you for your interest in volunteering with the Australian Human Rights Centre.

The AHRC is a small research centre with limited resources to devote to the training and induction of new volunteers. This means that we usually only take on a few volunteers a year who are able to make a commitment to the Centre and/or combine their volunteering with their studies.

Because we value the time and energy of our volunteers, we want to make their experience at the AHRC as rewarding as possible. To help us do this, we need to match the skills and interests of potential volunteers with the work that needs to be done.

We would appreciate if you could answer this short AHRC volunteer questionnaire. Your responses will be passed on to the Centre Working Group, and if there are tasks to be done that match your interests, we will get in touch and ask if you are keen to help out.

We do apologise if we aren't able to find work for you – but at least it will save you from sitting in our office twiddling your thumbs or stuffing envelopes!
